CABERNET SAUVIGNON

COOMBSVILLE DISTRICT, NAPA VALLEY

“I was always very curious. I wanted to know how things work in the world and when I came across anything that wasn’t easily explained, and I didn’t know how it worked, that fascinated me more than thinking about things that were completely factual. So, in other words, wine had a mysterious effect on me; it was this alchemaic transformation of juice of a fruit into a bottled wine. I was always intrigued by fermentation, the action of anthocyanins, the layering of different scientifically analyzable elements that result in something that doesn’t necessarily follow, that can’t be pinned down.”
